Business Intelligence refers to skills and technologies used to help organizations make decisions. These skills and technologies include, but are not limited to, such topics as OLAP, analytics, data mining, business performance management, benchmarks, text mining, and predictive analytics. This presentation will review some of the issues and tradeoffs involved for organizations as they implement a Business Intelligence solution.